

Randy Angus Grasick (1970)

Born Angus Guy White, Randy went into foster care as a child where he was raised and nurtured by the Grassick family. He attended high school in Victoria and served with the reserve army after finishing school. An electrician by trade, Randy taught in Zimbabwe in the early 1980s, where he adventured around the region on his BMW. Well-known around the Shawnigan Lake community, Randy worked with local tradesmen and residents of the area as an independent electrician. A hands-on man, Randy worked his way to electrical foreman for the Greater Victoria School District. Randy enjoyed swimming and was known to butterfly stroke across the West Arm. He played the piano, often during parties and gatherings, where he would break out with jazzy versions of Heart and Soul. A quiet, peaceful and gentle man, he often kept to himself and rarely asked for much from those around him.

Randy was predeceased by his wife Gail and survived by his step-son Mathew and three grandchildren (Matteo, Odette and Ira) as well as many extended family members.
